Abstract: Political ambitions to subordinate the whole world to a single "political force" proved endless, evil, involving the peoples of the world since the very beginning into a dramatic and bloody fight, literally and figuratively, across the millenary history of mankind (ancient Greece, Rome, Popes' period, Napoleon, Hitler) and continuing through the current group today known under the name "Bilderberg"- the elite which, under the aegis of the European globalization (EU) takes us to the cupola of a World Government.

Key words: money, war, globalization

INTRODUCTION

With reference to our recent history, we conclude that where Napoleon and Hitler failed using force, the globalists will be successful doing it in secretly. Thus, the elite world started the construction project started firstly by laying down the economic structure.

MATERIAL AND METHOD

As you know, the Battle of Waterloo (in 1815) between the French army led by Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte, and the English army, led by Lord Wellington resulted in Napoleon's defeat.

With 20 hours before the news about Napoleon's defeat arriving to London, Nathan Rothschild, head of the British branch of the Rothschild Family, heard this news and spread the false rumor in the London Stock Exchange, according to which Napoleon had won the war.

In this way exchange shares fell catastrophically, by 98% and Nathan Rothschild bought them for nothing, so buying the entire British economy (with a few pennies a pound). When news of Napoleon's defeat finally arrived in London, the shares went up and thus, Rothschild was running England! Britain was now the undisputable leader of Europe and Rothschild was himself "England".

A century later, the World War I started based on the increasing tensions in Serbia. One of the causes that led to the European division was the nationalism.

As a matter of fact, there was no reason for World War I except that it was an opportunity for the banking cartel to make a lot of money, by financing both sides of the war.`

Weapon campaigns financed by the banks in England, Germany, France and Austria, controlled by the Rothschild, have sponsored all sides.

At least 20 million people have been killed in the war. It was a conflict so terrible that people have sworn that they will not fight again. After the war, the victorious powers gathered at Versailles to discuss the conditions of peace.

After 1919 the idea of European unity reappears, so that the first organization that seeks international cooperation, security and peace will be defending the League of Nations established in 1919 in Paris (through the Treaty of Versailles) by the winners of the World War I.

In fact war was wanted for money and power, and secondly, as a pretext for creating the League of Nations as a "guarantee" that the war will not ever happen again.

The real intention was to create a framework to achieve a World Government, which is why many nations have seen the League as a threat to their sovereignty and therefore, refused to join.

British secret services, with the help of the Rockefeller family, founded the Congress on Foreign Relations (CFR) in New York in 1921, recruiting the most brilliant representatives of American life. The CFR’s mission was to abolish all nation states in favor of a powerful world government administered by a small elite.

The 1930 World Government promoters were divided into two connected camps: fascists in Italy and Germany and with its center in London Fabians Socialists.

Fascists supporters believed that the army should be used to quickly turn the world into a New World Order-Adolf Hitler, while much of the sophisticated practitioners of the world globalism (Socialists) said that the implementation of small steps is the way to secure global domination. In making the path of the Second World War and during the conflict, bankers again funded both sides, as they had during the reign of Napoleon.

World War II left behind a destroyed Europe in terms of material products, broke by strong and divided political crisis but, on the other hand, increased chance to reinforce the point that only the elite of global governance could save humanity from destruction.

So, after the failure of the League of Nations, failure caused by U.S. refusal to support the organization (because of Wilson's policy proposals were rejected by an isolationist Congress), the following are created: the United Nations (1945), followed by other organizations with global and International Monetary Fund (1946), World Bank (1946), the Havana Charter (Charter of International Trade, 1946), the General Agreement of Tariffs and trade (GATT, 1946). These international initiatives are meant to be perceived by the public as pillars of a new world order that will not allow the repetition of the tragedies of two world wars, in reality being pieces of a mechanism already put in motion: the conquest of the world.

UN was created by winners of the Second World War on 24 October 1945 using initially a naval base location to the Presidio of San Francisco. Later, the UN complex in New York City was built on land donated by John D. Rockefeller.

Thus, the new format "World Council" quickly began work for the next phase of their plan into smaller steps, namely forming a continental super-states, the first step in their trilateral plan is to create the European Union.

In April the following year, he started an international conference in San Francisco who has started drafting the United Nations Charter. Among the goals stipulated in the Charter that number to end the war and to fight for human rights, tolerance, economic and social progress. A first objective was to create a legal framework for considering and taking decisions on human rights violations.

Not long before, in 1949, two bodies will be established, bodies which will mark the political and economic future of Europe, it is the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) on 4 April 1949, in Washington the European Council – initiated by the British on May 5, 1949 – through the Treaty of Strasbourg of ten countries (Belgium, Denmark, France, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, United Kingdom, Netherlands, Norway and Sweden), Council of Europe, an organization located in a permanent legal identity crisis, but whose purpose was to be closely concerned by the formation of "European Union".

The Treaty of London stated simply that trade links are established between the nations of Europe such as NAFTA and GATT in North America.

Basically, the European Union begins construction in 1950 with the declaration made on May 9 by French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman, which clearly explains the reasons and the desire to live together in Europe, "We reach out yesterday's enemies, not for forgiveness, but to build together the Europe of tomorrow."

On April 18, 1951 six countries, Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, Luxembourg and the Netherlands signed the Treaty of Paris, which was established the European Coal and Steel Community (ECSC). Thus was born the first European community.

In 1954 the world elite met secretly in the Bilderberg Hotel in Oosterbeek (The Netherlands).

Once the European Union was founded under the pretext of trade, North American Union and Asian Union would be formed and the UN that will serve as a global regulator of the 3 superpowers and the world body to impose on third sub regions.

On 29 May 1956, after the Venice meeting, foreign ministers of six countries decided to begin intergovernmental negotiations aimed at setting the two bodies: the European Economic Community and European Atomic Energy Community (Euratom).

After a period of creation and adjustments of institutions that serve globalization, the Single European Act (1986), and the Treaty of Maastricht (1992) plan was strengthened considerably, coming out of the cone of shadow, in light of a constructive, public and official interpretation which still masks the true intention.

RESULTS AND DISCUSSIONS

Fiscal harmonization is an instrument serving the globalization.

After a careful analysis of the evolutionary steps of globalization see that tax harmonization was not any time an end in itself but a means, first marginal, gradual and straightforward in implementation of a world that wants to be governed by one political force, a world controlled by a super market and legislation. In fact in art 3 of the union Treaty (Treaty establishing the European Community, 25th of March 1957) it is shown that community action is in the proximity of the laws, saying also that this approach will intervene only "insofar as it is necessary for the functioning of the common market." Apparently, we observe the treaty has set a double objective: a common market and a progressive approximation of Member States economies by acquiring a common economic policy. In reality, the treaty aims to unify the premise of achieving economic-political unification of the world.

Neumark Report (1962) show that achieving of a single market involves the completion of their terms of taxation in a unified economic space and no significant differences between the laws of Member States. Also, in the years 1969-1970, the Werner plan (report), in turn, supports the need for closer national legislation.

Policy of small steps, adopted by the globalists, is confirmed by advancing the principle of subsidiarity, which refers to the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community (ECSC) and especially in the Single European Act (SEA), signed in Luxembourg on February 17, 1986, and entered into force on 1 July 1987. The principle of subsidiarity, as illustrated in dispositions of art 5 par 2 (old article 3 B) of the Treaty establishing the European Community, says that "in areas not related to its exclusive competence, the Community shall take action, in accordance with the principle of subsidiarity , but only in the extent to which objectives can not be considered a sufficient measure by Member States and can therefore be based on size and analyzed effects of the action, be better achieved at Community level ". This principle has its origins in works of Aristotle and Thomas Aquinas, the great precursor of the idea of subsidiarity. Subsidiarity was a superior support which superior collectivities granted the inferior collectivities, without replacing them from the point of view of powers and duties.

To examine the evolution of the concept of "tax harmonization" we have to take into consideration the move from "common market" to "internal market" which is not a mere play of words. According to the Single European Act (SEA), the progressive movement in the domestic market was focused on the approximation of the laws by December 31, 1992, by removing physical obstacles, technical, fiscal disrupt trade between Member States, free movement of persons, goods and capital. He said that differences in tax treatment should be eliminated because, otherwise, they would replace customs barriers that were removed.

Therefore, the main objective of SEA remains an area without borders to allow free movement of goods, services, capital and persons and freedom that is in fact a guiding principle of tax harmonization.

Philosophy of, and means to harmonize tax have seen a great emphasis on transparency, but also legal under the Treaty of Maastricht (Treaty on European Union called) signed by the European Council on February 7, 1992 in the Dutch city Maastricht, and entered into force on November 1, 1993. This treaty founded the European Union. This way under art 99 of the EC Treaty as it was inserted by the Treaty of Maastricht "member States will consider their own economic policies as a matter of common interest, having therefore to coordinate them (...)"

On 1 January 1999 it is officially launched the single European currency, euro, officially adopted by Austria, Belgium, Finland, France, Germany, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Portugal and Spain. Economic and monetary union set up a European system of central banks and the European Central Bank, to issue and manage the role of the euro, as single currency.

Although long treated superficially, tax harmonization has aroused a growing interest for the community at the extent of monetary areas consolidation and the introduction of reference currencies, especially euros.

The Treaty of Nice (signed on February 2001 and entered into force on February 1, 2003) the role as co-legislator of the European Parliament was consolidated, the procedure of co—decision will be applied in the fields of fight against discrimination, economic and social cohesion, visa , Asylum and immigration.

And finally, the Treaty of Lisbon (2007) is seen as a "step forward" in the transfer of sovereignty from the EU Member States, but a limited one (being enlarged the powers of the Commission, Parliament and Court of Justice in justice and internal affairs).

CONCLUSIONS

European Union, which now claims an international organization guided by noble purposes (but lacking legal personality), an economic and political "community" to include 27 European countries, with specific behavioral tendencies of a federal state, formed in the stated purpose of ensuring peace, stability and prosperity to their citizens, the EU's international identity assertion, the introduction of Union citizenship, open space without borders, the single market, free movement of persons, goods, capital and services, etc is, in the opinion of the undersigned, an apocalyptic "step", a continuous fight up to the break-up of the sovereignty of the states and in "modern enslavement" of mankind.

Therefore we say that harmonization is not far from a "concept" science belonging to fiscal or financial, but rather appears as a creation, a goal or means used in the content of the "ambitious" project of global elite to conquer and control the whole mankind.

The slogan of UE is: „unity in diversity” and the hymn if the prelude of „joy ode” from Beethoven’s 9th symphony.
